

Caribbean Journal of Social Work

CALL FOR PAPERS

Vol 16

with a special section
Evaluation in Social Work

Editors: Tracie Rogers and Peta-Anne Baker with Guest Editor: Tamarah Moss

Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research, Bryn Mawr College

The Guest Editor of the Special invites contributors to consider Evaluation as a critical vehicle to address the following questions:

- How are social change and development efforts, social cohesion, and empowerment in social work measured?
- How do we apply evaluation approaches through the social work lens to address and manage the aftermath of natural disasters such as hurricanes, and pandemics?
- What theoretical/conceptual approaches are most appropriate for social work evaluation in the Caribbean context?

CJSW welcomes submissions from social work academics, educators, scholars, and practitioners, as well as from members of other fields and disciplines. Authors are invited to submit theoretical, empirical, and conceptual papers related to social work theory, education, research, practice, and social policy.

The journal is especially interested in work that stimulates critical, multi-level, multi-systemic thinking about human and social development in our societies. The CJSW is open to accepting work in a variety of forms including submissions that are artistic in nature.

Submission of Abstracts: March 18, 2023

Abstracts and completed manuscripts should be submitted to cjswauthors@gmail.com

For further information contact:
The Editors, The Caribbean Journal of Social Work
cjsw.acswe@gmail.com